

Tyler Technologies and the City of Bloomington, Illinois Contract for ERP Software

DALLAS – January 4, 2011 – Tyler Technologies (NYSE: TYL) announced today that the City of Bloomington, Illinois, has signed a contract to invest in Tyler’s Munis® enterprise resource planning \(ERP\) solution. In addition to software licenses, the agreement includes related professional services, maintenance and support.

“The City of Bloomington chose Tyler’s Munis ERP solution to replace our many disparate applications with one integrated system,” said Scott Sprouls, Bloomington’s director of information services. “Munis provides automation and transparency, eliminating many of our manual processes and bringing a higher level of efficiency and lower operational costs to the city. Additionally, improved reporting capabilities will provide more timely and accurate information to our citizens with 24/7 access to services and information. Tyler’s Munis solution is a great fit for our growing city.”

Bloomington, one of the fastest-growing metropolitan areas in Illinois with a population of approximately 72,400, has invested in a broad range of Tyler’s Munis financial, human capital management and citizen service applications. By using Munis, Bloomington will be able to integrate applications into one platform that shares information, providing greater efficiency across all departments.

“Tyler’s unique local government insight coupled with our technology and Munis’ underlying functionality will facilitate information-driven decisions and streamline processes, helping the City of Bloomington achieve its business goals and operate with greater efficiency,” said Richard E. Peterson Jr., president of Tyler’s ERP & School Division. “We look forward to working with the city to make its technology more current to empower staff and citizens and help the city significantly improve its daily operations.”
