

Clermont County, Ohio, Expands Partnership With Tyler Technologies

Tyler's Appraisal & Tax solutions deliver cost savings and staff efficiencies

DALLAS – Jan. 3, 2013 – Tyler Technologies, Inc. (NYSE: TYL) has signed a contract with Clermont County, Ohio, for Tyler's CLT Appraisal Services for a county-wide revaluation. The contract includes establishing property values for all real property; the valuation is expected to conclude in 2014.

Clermont County, located just east of Cincinnati, selected Tyler's CLT Appraisal Services and Tyler Verify for data and field verification services to execute a customized revaluation process using up-to-date technology. The county also uses Tyler's iasWorld® computer-assisted mass appraisal (CAMA) solution.

“We have already realized cost savings and staff efficiencies with iasWorld, and that positive Tyler experience gave us great confidence in choosing their appraisal and Tyler Verify services,” said Clermont County Auditor Linda Fraley. “Broadening our relationship with Tyler will help us provide quality data to our constituents, while considerably reducing the cost of field reviews and providing staff with additional time to focus on the final analysis phases of our 2014 reappraisal project.”

Tyler's CLT Appraisal Services has nearly 75 years of experience and has completed more than 3,000 appraisal projects in 46 states.

“Clermont County's continued investment in Tyler's appraisal and tax solutions speaks to the professionalism and expertise of our people, and the value provided by our products,” said David J. Johnson, president of Tyler's CLT Appraisal Services. “Tyler is pleased to expand our partnership with Clermont County.”
