Acquisition enhances Tyler's courts and justice solution offerings

PLANO, Texas – Oct. 30, 2019 – Tyler Technologies Inc. (NYSE: TYL) today announced it has acquired Courthouse Technologies (CHT), an industry leading provider of jury management systems. CHT will complement and elevate Tyler's software offerings for domestic and international court clients.

“The acquisition of Courthouse Technologies strengthens Tyler's courts and justice portfolio to better serve our clients and their communities,” said Lynn Moore, president and chief executive officer of Tyler. “In our view, CHT is the strongest solution for jury management in the market, and we look forward to enabling courts to make their jury operations more efficient.”

“Courthouse and Tyler are both leaders in the courts and justice market,” said Scott Kerr, founder of CHT. “We are excited to become part of a larger company that shares our vision for technology in this space, our company culture, and our strong client retention rate. We look forward to seeing the positive impact we will make together to the courts and justice market.”

CHT's solution serves court systems of all sizes and is used by a diverse client base spanning 60 U.S. counties, 18 U.S. states (including five statewide agreements), and two Canadian provinces.

Co-founded by Scott Kerr and Paul Arntsen, CHT is headquartered in Vancouver, British Columbia, in Canada.
