

Tyler Technologies' Plano, Texas, Office Named a Top Workplace for Eighth Time

Tyler joins The Dallas Morning News' ranking in large company category

PLANO, Texas - Tyler Technologies, Inc. (NYSE: TYL) has been named to The Dallas Morning News' "Top 100 Places to Work" list in the large company category for 2020. Tyler was ranked 24th on the list, marking the company's eighth time to be recognized.

"The quality of innovative and impressive companies in Dallas-Fort Worth only increases each year, so we are honored to be recognized by The Dallas Morning News as a top workplace in the area," said Lynn Moore, president and chief executive officer of Tyler. "Especially during such a challenging year, we're proud to have risen to the occasion to maintain a strong company culture while continuing to stay committed to providing crucial technology to the public sector."

The Dallas Morning News bases its Top 100 Places to Work on an independent, confidential survey of employees. The survey, conducted by Energage LLC, asks employees questions related to company alignment, effectiveness, leadership, management, and work/life balance. This year, 246 Dallas-Fort Worth metro area-based companies were surveyed.

More than 800 employees work in Tyler's Plano office, which is both the company's headquarters and home to its Courts & Justice Division. Tyler has nearly 5,500 employees and approximately 30 offices across the U.S. and Canada.
