AOCI Impact on TCE & TCBV[1]

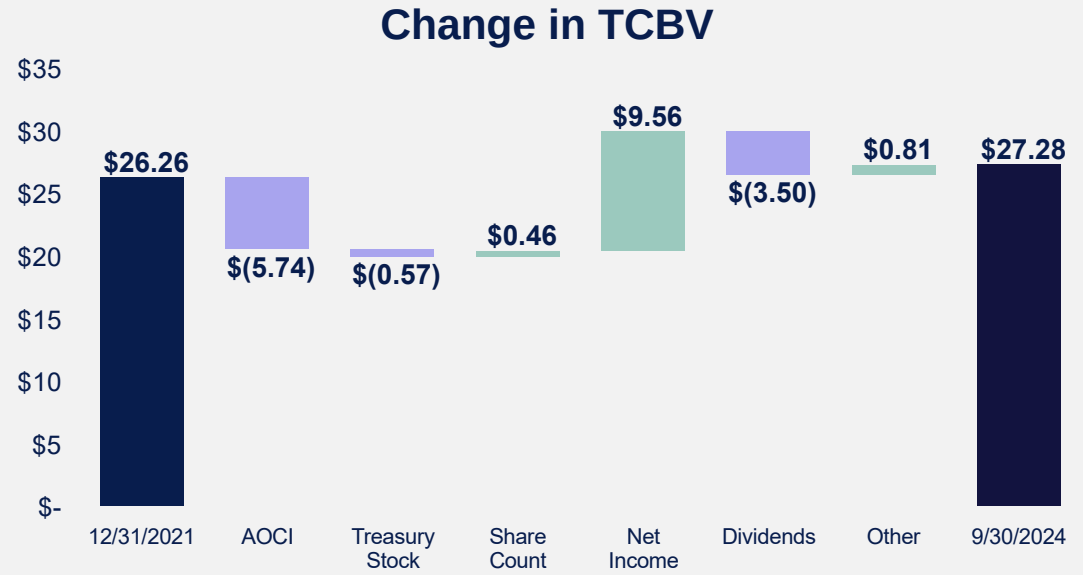

Unrealized losses believed to be temporary in nature

- AOCI losses are believed to be temporary in nature, as they are associated with the increase in interest rates which has resulted in an increase in the unrealized loss position of the available for sale securities portfolio
- We expect these metrics to return to more normalized levels over time given the high credit quality of our investment portfolio
- Excluding the AOCI impact, our TCE ratio and TCBV per share would have been 8.38% and $33.02, respectively[1].

FISI believes a stock buyback program is an important part of the capital markets tool kit and announced a new stock repurchase program in June 2022 for up to ~5% of then outstanding common shares

[1] AOCI= Accumulated other comprehensive income (loss). TCE = Tangible common equity to tangible assets. TCBV = Tangible common book value per share. Please see Appendix for reconciliation of non-GAAP financial measures for the computation of these non-GAAP measures.

Non-GAAP Reconciliations

In addition to results presented in accordance with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles ("GAAP"), this presentation contains certain non-GAAP financial measures. The Company believes that providing certain non-GAAP financial measures provides investors with information useful in understanding our financial performance, performance trends and financial position. Our management uses these measures for internal planning and forecasting purposes and we believe that our presentation and discussion, together with the accompanying reconciliations, allows investors, security analysts and other interested parties to view our performance and the factors and trends affecting our business in a manner similar to management. These non-GAAP measures should not be considered a substitute for GAAP measures and we strongly encourage investors to review our consolidated financial statements in their entirety and not to rely on any single financial measure to evaluate the Company. Non-GAAP financial measures have inherent limitations, are not uniformly applied and are not audited. Because non-GAAP financial measures are not standardized, it may not be possible to compare these financial measures with other companies' non-GAAP financial measures having the same or similar names.
