Project Holiday Joy

2023-12-27

For more than a decade, Ferguson associates have participated in Project Holiday Joy, a campaign dedicated to helping our local communities during the holiday season. Teaming up with local organizations, associates across the country adopted children and families through the angel tree program, donated toys and collected monetary donations to support their communities.

“Our associates’ dedication to Project Holiday Joy shows the heart and culture of Ferguson,” explained Melissa Hazelwood, Director of Social Impact. “Their willingness to give back, whether through their time, talents or treasures, showcases their commitment to making a difference. We are incredibly thankful for their generosity and the positive impact they continue to make in our communities.”

Notable highlights include:

- Branches in Southern California collected nearly 3,000 toys for the Stuff-A-Bus event put on by the local news and firefighters.
- Associates and customers in Sarasota, FL worked together to sponsor 98 children in foster care in nearby counties.
- Sales Leadership program associates in four locations across the country collected more than 4,000 gifts for children.

“I am overwhelmed at the support of our team and their generous hearts to help bring the magic of the holiday season to so many deserving children in our community,” shared Julianne Hamrick, Operations manager in Southern California.

Ferguson proudly supports its neighbors in need as part of the company’s Ferguson Cares mission to strengthen the communities where its associates live and work.
