Microlog Renews Line of Credit for $1.0 Million

Germantown, Md. -- February 13, 2001 -- Microlog Corporation announced today that it has renewed and amended its line of credit agreement with Silicon Valley Bank.

The line of credit allows the Company to borrow as much as 75% of its eligible receivables up to $1.0 million. Because the Company had not drawn down on the existing line, which allowed the Company to borrow as much as 75% of its eligible receivables up to $2.0 million, the Company believes that the amended line provides sufficient funds and terms that are more appropriate for its current business plans.

The term of the line is for one year and is secured by all of the Company's assets. "Renewing our banking line of credit is a significant event and we are comfortable with a $1.0 million line at this time. We are also very pleased with our banking partner, Silicon Valley Bank, and look forward to a long, continuing relationship with them," stated Mr. Kirk Isenbart, Microlog's Controller and Principal Accounting Officer.

"This continued relationship with Microlog compliments our high technology portfolio," said Mr. John Atanasoff, Vice President of Silicon Valley Bank. "We look forward to working with Microlog now and in the future."
